Why SPbU?

Saint Petersburg University (SPbU) is a leading Russian classical university.

Nowadays it maintains its leading position in providing higher education and is ranked among the world's best universities.

In 1724 in Saint Petersburg the Imperial Academy of Sciences and Arts was established by Peter the Great. Since its early days, initially as a part of the Academy, and later as an independent seat of learning, St. Petersburg University has adhered to the traditions of classical European education and has had its focus largely on fundamental research at the same time training professionals capable of contributing to economical and political development of Russia.

Benefits of studying in SPbU

- Research integrated learning
- Bilingual Diploma: in Russian and English
- Enhanced opportunities for career development
- European Credit Transfer System (ECTS)
- Practical training in leading Russian and foreign companies
- Access to research and technological resources
- Modern educational technologies

St. Petersburg University both maintains its traditions and is open to innovation. It contributes to developing its students talents and competences. That is why this is the right place for those who are carefully considering their future and seeking great career opportunities.

Six priority fields of Research and Academic Development in SPbU Strategic Plan approved by the Russian Government:

1. Nanotechnology and Materials Science
2. Biomedicine and Human Health
3. Ecology and Sustainable Use of Natural Resources
4. Information Systems and Technology
5. Human Resource Management and Technologies
6. Research of Social Processes and Technologies

Review

"Having earned my bachelor degree I was searching for a full-time Master program with a broad multidisciplinary approach to the study. I was always interested in different areas of the science and for my future career I was looking for a combination of science and practice. The POMOR Master program offers a great variety of subjects taught by scientists from all over the world. So it gives an excellent chance to follow your own path in any direction and in any country"

Reviews

"I chose International Trading System MA program because it includes not only in-depth study of a number of economic subjects, but also analysis of international law, which will be especially useful for those who aspire to work in international governmental, non-governmental organizations or multinational corporations. Students get knowledge in a number of related disciplines, dealing with matters of customs law, marketing, accounting, financial analysis, which enables them to think much broader and to solve problems beyond the narrow specialization, and thus, to be more flexible in labor market"

Alexey Matrosov
GT Capital Group

"The International Trading System MA Program is certainly relevant today and meets current challenges posed on business and government. The knowledge I have obtained here helps me to develop my professional carrier. Coverage of a wide range of world trade issues allows to understand the whole mechanism of international economic relations"

Reviews

"The program opens up the possibilities that seemed unobtainable to me before. Classes with German lecturers, communication with students from different countries, a winter school in Germany, an internship in Europe – this makes you realize that Europe is closer than you think"

Marina Nosacheva
International cooperation manager,
Higher School of Economics,
St. Petersburg

"I have chosen the MA "Studies in European Societies". Now, undertaking an internship in Germany, I can certainly say that I am quite happy about this choice. The interdisciplinary structure of the program and its international focus allowed the organizers to attract interesting people with diverse educational backgrounds and professional interests – students and teachers coming both from Russia and abroad – and now they all come together in an English-language dialogue"

Ekaterina Balabanyuk

■ About the program

The program is conducted by Saint Petersburg University and Freie Universität Berlin. It provides the students with higher education in changing and challenging environments. Its students are given the opportunity to acquire two Master degrees in two years, with diplomas that do not require additional recognition in Bologna Agreement countries.

The program focuses on training experts in global information and communication studies and practices, including through internships in Russian and German media. The English language entrance requirements are standard for today's Europe; also, English and German/Russian language training is a part of the curriculum.

The program has 10 state-funded places for non-Russian residents, 5 state-funded places for Russians, and 5 fee-paying places for students of any residence.

During the period of study students spend the first and third semester at SPbU and the second semester at FU. During the fourth semester the students choose the university of study according to the selection of their Master thesis supervisor: there is a choice of where to write and defend the Master thesis between St. Petersburg and Berlin.

■ Reviews

"A substantial part of practical classes and the study of the language typology enabled me to improve my language skills as well as to apply the knowledge I gained in teaching German to schoolchildren"

Yuliya Petrova
A school teacher

"The training that I have received within the framework of this program helped me obtain the most efficient combination of knowledge in the German language and culture which I successfully use in practice, I hope"

Mariya Polyanskaya
A teacher of German at the Russian-German Meeting Center

"The program gives you an opportunity to study not only linguistic sciences alone but also their intersection with sociology and cultural studies, thus enabling you to expand the field of possible knowledge application. My own experience may serve as an example here: I successfully work with customers from Germany and Austria"

Maksim Minazov

Welcome to Saint Petersburg!

What images come to your mind when you think of Saint Petersburg? Are those great museums, palaces and theaters like the Hermitage and the Mariinsky Theater? The spire of the Peter and Paul Cathedral, The Bronze Horseman and The Summer Gardens? Or numerous rivers and canals veining the Venice of the North? Or its magnificent bridges, embankments and parks? Modern exhibitions, cozy cafes and art spaces? Or it may be the image of a White Night with ships passing under the raised bridges when the night sky is still as light as in day time. No matter what you think of it is all true and you are most welcome to come and see it with your own eyes.

Modern St. Petersburg is famous not only for its world-known places of interests, but also for its concerts of the world's most famous singers, cinema festivals and sports events. You can listen to an open-air opera, watch fabulous illuminated fountain shows, walk on the roofs with incredible views or just walk along the streets, where the heroes of Pushkin, Dostoevsky, Gogol and Dovlatov come alive. Technology parks and start-up incubators, as well as offices of major companies from Gazprom to Yandex and many other interesting places and sights are to be seen here.

Those who are into travelling can take a few hours trip to Tallinn or Helsinki by coach or train, or to any place in the world by plane from the newly-built Pulkovo-3 terminal. Saint Petersburg offers you inexhaustible travelling and sightseeing opportunities. The concept of boredom is alien to our city, there is always something to dream of and aspire to. Don't miss an opportunity of your lifetime to enrich your cultural and studying experience!

Welcome and enjoy our wonderful city!
